The man behind Gukesh's rapid rise in Chess

A decade ago when Mr MVM Velmohan, the correspondent and the man behind the Velammal Nexus group first met D Gukesh, little did he know that this boy would rule the world of chess one day.

And then when Velavan Subbiah, the chess coordinator spoke to Gukesh, he did confirm that this aspiring kid had the potential and will soon emulate Viswanathan Anand.

Finally history was made when Gukesh became the youngest-ever Chess World Champion, beating Ding Liren in Singapore last week.

Velmohan was at hand when Gukesh reached the pinnacle of the chess world. The day Gukesh secured the winning point, Velmohan took the next flight to Singapore. An opportunity to witness Gukesh being crowned wasn't to be missed.

Apart from parents D Rajnikanth and D Padmavathi, Velmohan has been the biggest pillar of support for Gukesh, and he has been one of the biggest catalysts in the popularity and legacy of chess in Tamil Nadu. The school the 50-year-old runs is behind 22 out of the 33 Grandmasters the state has produced.

If the Tal Chess Club is where Anand's dreams began, for the likes of Gukesh, R Praggnanandhaa, R Vaishali, it is Velammal School. The institution has been at the forefront of implementing the 'Seven to Seventeen Programme' launched by former Tamil Nadu chief minister J Jayalalithaa soon after the 2013 World Chess Championship match between Anand and Magnus Carlsen which Chennai hosted.

"I would put it down to the competitions we conduct throughout the year and the special coaching programme which gives them a lot of exposure," Velmohan said.

Over the years, students from the school have travelled across India and even overseas for chess events. If the children have impressive results, they are sent on exposure tours as well. Gukesh and Praggnanandhaa have been part of the school team that won three world school chess titles.

"Exposure and travel are also part of the learning journey. If the students are able to manage academics and sports, it is our duty to provide that platform. So we sponsor our students' travel and also support them with free education, accommodation, and food," Velmohan added.

Every year, Velammal School brings world-class athletes to its campus for interactive sessions. Some of the illustrious names to have visited include Anand, Sachin Tendulkar, PV Sindhu, Kapil Dev, Virender Sehwag, Dwayne Bravo, and PT Usha. In September, Paris Olympics double-medallist shooter Manu Bhaker was at the school to present sports scholarships worth over ₹2 crores.

Sometime in the coming days, the school plans to greet one of its own—Gukesh—who is yet to visit the school and meet the students. "We are planning a mass felicitation programme."

Having produced three players—Gukesh, Praggnanandhaa, and Vaishali—who were part of India's teams that won the Chess Olympiad earlier this year, Velmohan has a new target.

"We are already recognised as a factory for producing Grandmasters and a powerhouse behind India's chess revolution. Our goal is to produce a minimum of 50 Grandmasters by 2030," he says.

GCTP crack down on illegal bike racing ahead of New Year

By Our Correspondent

With the New Year fast approaching, the Greater Chennai Traffic Police (GCTP) has intensified its crackdown on illegal bike racing, a growing menace on the city's roads during holiday celebrations. Popular streets like Anna Nagar's Second Avenue and Shanthi Colony are among the hotspots where these dangerous races often take place, putting lives at risk.

The GCTP has issued a stern warning to racers and announced a series of measures to curb the activity. Over 110 individuals have been bound over, and 45 vehicles have been seized in recent operations. Additionally, 165 check posts have been set up across the city to monitor and intercept any unlawful activities. Offenders are facing strict legal action.

Speaking about the initiative, a senior traffic police officer in Anna Nagar said, "Illegal bike racing is a serious threat to public safety. We have increased patrolling and are closely monitoring areas where such races are reported. Our aim is to ensure a safe and peaceful New Year for everyone."

The measures have been well-received by Anna Nagar residents, who have long been concerned about the reckless behavior of racers on the wide roads of Second Avenue and Shanthi Colony.

"This is an excellent move by the police," said S. Venkatesh, a resident of Shanthi Colony. "We have seen how these races disrupt traffic and endanger lives. The loud noise of revving engines and the risk of accidents make it unbearable. We're glad the police are taking it seriously this time."

Another resident, Rekha, who lives near Second Avenue, shared her appreciation. "During the holiday season, it gets worse. These bikers race at high speeds, ignoring all traffic rules. It's a relief to know that the authorities are being proactive and taking action to prevent it," she said.

GCTP has also appealed to parents and guardians to discourage youngsters from participating in such activities. The department has emphasized that illegal racing not only endangers the lives of participants but also poses a significant risk to pedestrians and other road users.

Meanwhile, the police are encouraging residents to report any incidents of illegal racing immediately. "We want to create awareness and seek the community's cooperation. Together, we can make our streets safer," added a senior officer. The campaign against illegal bike racing has set the tone for a safer and more responsible celebration of the New Year in Chennai. Residents and officials alike are hopeful that these measures will ensure a peaceful start to 2025.

GCC begins desilting Sunnambukulam Pond

By N Rathi Chithra

THE Greater Chennai Corporation (GCC) has commenced desilting Sunnambukulam, one of the oldest ponds in Pudhur village, located in Ward 80 of the Ambattur zone. This initiative is part of the GCC's ongoing efforts to conserve water bodies, mitigate flooding and improve the groundwater table across the city.

An official of the GCC Ambattur Zone said the dredging works for the five-acre pond, began this week. "The water storage capacity of the pond is alarmingly low due to neglect and encroachments by local residents," he said. To address these challenges, the GCC is collaborating with the revenue department to carry out a survey on Saturday to demarcate the pond's boundaries. Following the survey, a detailed project report will guide the construction of compound walls and a footpath around the water body.

Earlier this month Chennai Mayor R. Priya inspected the site and urged officials to accelerate the restoration process. Speaking on the occasion, she emphasised the importance of conserving Sunnambukulam to prevent flooding and secure the area's water resources.

In a media report Ward 80 Councillor B.K. Murthy expressed optimism about the project, noting that the pond's strategic location in the fast-developing Pudhur area makes it vulnerable to encroachments. "The development work will not only protect the pond from encroachments but also help prevent annual flooding in the surrounding areas. We hope the Corporation completes the project at the earliest," he said.

A local activist highlighted the years of neglect the pond has suffered. "For years, the pond has been a den for anti-social activities and residents have repeatedly called for its protection. Its development will significantly improve groundwater recharge while also preventing inundation during heavy rains," he said, urging authorities to remove encroachments promptly.

Sunnambukulam is just one of several water bodies being revived as part of GCC's broader flood mitigation efforts in Ambattur. Recent projects include the development of a surplus course to the Coum from Ambattur along the Chennai Bypass Road.

The revival of Sunnambukulam is seen as a crucial step in balancing the environmental and developmental needs of the area. With work underway, residents hope this historic pond will soon be restored to its former glory, benefiting both the local ecosystem and the community.

Nethrodaya's 22nd anniversary

NETHRODAYA'S 22nd Anniversary Celebration was a milestone event that marked two decades of tireless efforts to empower the Differently-abled community. The occasion was graced by the presence of Hon'ble Member of Parliament, Tmt. Kanimozhi, who inaugurated the ' 'Medicine for the Blind' scheme' . This pioneering initiative provides free medicines to visually impaired patients at their doorsteps, a testament to Nethrodaya's unwavering commitment to empowering individuals with disabilities.

In addition to the 'Medicine for the Blind' scheme, Nethrodaya also initiated the self-employment scheme, offering seed capital to help visually impaired individuals start small-scale businesses. This initiative has already begun to bear fruit, with several visually impaired families receiving the necessary support to break free from the cycle of begging.

The event was made even more special by the presence of renowned playback singers Rita Thyagarajan and MLR Karthikeyan, who enthralled the audience with a musical fest. Nethrodaya took the opportunity to honour outstanding visually impaired achievers.

Child's head stuck in Anna Tower grill: Video goes viral

By Our Correspondent

A dramatic incident unfolded at the iconic Anna Tower in Anna Nagar earlier this month when a toddler's head accidentally got stuck in the grill surrounding the tower. The quick thinking and coordinated efforts of bystanders led to a successful rescue, and a video capturing the operation has since gone viral on social media, garnering widespread appreciation.

The child, whose name has not been disclosed, had come to the park with her parents for a family outing. While playing near the tower, she accidentally slipped her head through the narrow bars of the grill, only to find herself trapped. Her distressed parents tried unsuccessfully to free her, prompting other visitors at the park to step in.

"It was a tense moment," said Kumar, a local resident who was present during the incident. "The child was crying, and her parents were visibly shaken. But thankfully, everyone acted quickly and calmly." Several park-goers worked together to ensure the child's safety. While some tried to comfort her, others strategised on how to widen the grill without causing injury. "We used hands to protect her neck and gently maneuvered her head out of the grill," said another witness who assisted in the rescue. "It took some time, but we were relieved when she was finally free."

The rescue operation, which lasted under 15 minutes, was captured on video by a bystander. The footage, showing the collective effort and eventual success, has since gone viral on social media platforms, drawing praise from netizens.

Park authorities have taken note of the incident and are now reviewing safety measures around Anna Tower to prevent such accidents in the future. "We are discussing ways to ensure the grills are child-proof without altering the structure's aesthetic appeal," said a park official.

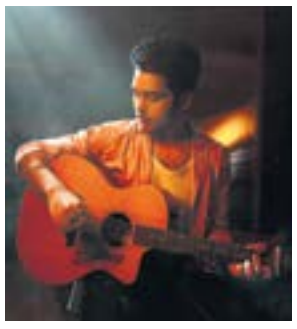

Meanwhile, the child's parents expressed their gratitude to those who helped rescue their daughter. "We were terrified when it happened, but we are so thankful to everyone who came forward to help," said the child's mother, who declined to be named. The Anna Tower, a landmark in Chennai, continues to attract visitors, but this incident has served as a reminder of the importance of safety precautions, particularly in places frequented by children.

Relentless rainfall reported across the city for the last few days due to low pressure in the Bay of Bengal exposed poor quality of roads laid in the city. Due to continuous rains, roads were badly damaged and cesspools formed on roads causing trouble to passengers. Though the roads leading to Aishwarya Nagar in Ayanambakkam were recently laid, it has been damaged now because of stagnation of rainwater on roads. This does reflect on the poor quality used on relaying the roads.
Will the authorities concerned take the necessary action?
