(Left) The water ATM on the main road near Velammal MHS school in Mogappair East. The other one is at the Mogappair West bus terminus

Water vending machines installed

THE Metro Water Board has planned to open free water ATMs to provide safe drinking water. The project will benefit daily wage workers and people visiting common areas like markets and bus depots.

In the first phase, city will get 50 water vending machines. The project has been widely welcomed by people from all walks of life, however, proper maintenance is essential for the sustainability of the project. The water machines will be installed in locations like beaches, parks, temples, bus depots and markets across the city.

According to Metro Water Board sources, two to six locations have been identified across each zone by the GCC for installing the ATMs.

Each water purifying machine is connected to a 3,000-litre water tank and features a CCTV camera for monitoring. The water ATMs will offer users two quantity options: 150 ml and 1 litre. Each tank will be connected to the water supply via metro water pipelines, ensuring a continuous supply.

Cooum choked with water weeds, locals seek action

By N Rathi Chithra

A thick carpet of water hyacinth now covers the Cooum River near the Rail Nagar Bridge, raising concerns among residents and environmentalists about the choking state of one of the Mogappair neighbourhood's key waterways. Once a flowing river, this stretch has now been reduced to a stagnant swamp covered with invasive aquatic weeds, posing environmental and public health risks.

The affected area, located behind a cluster of buildings, has become unrecognisable under layers of green growth. Locals say this is not just an eyesore but a breeding ground for mosquitoes, adding to their woes during the rising summer heat.

"This used to be a clean canal when we first came here two decades ago. Now it is more like a dump," said Subramanian, a retired schoolteacher and resident of the Rail Nagar locality. "Children can't even play nearby because of the stench and the fear of disease. We keep reporting it, but nothing changes," he claimed.

The unchecked growth of water hyacinth is a tell-tale sign of sewage inflow and stagnant water, both of which have long plagued the Cooum. According to environmentalists, the weeds thrive in nutrient-rich wastewater, which continues to enter the river through untreated drains.

"Water hyacinth spreads rapidly and blocks sunlight and oxygen from reaching the water. This kills aquatic life and causes the water body to die slowly," explained Kavitha Kulkarni, who identified herself as an urban ecologist. "It also clogs the river's flow and reduces its capacity to carry water, leading to flooding during the monsoon," she added.

The situation is particularly alarming given that this stretch. Cattle were seen grazing amid the weeds, raising further concerns about contamination entering the food chain. Authorities concerned have occasionally undertaken de-weeding operations, but residents say the efforts are sporadic and inadequate. A senior official, speaking on condition of anonymity, acknowledged the issue and said a fresh clean-up drive is being planned.

"We are coordinating with the Water Resources Department and other civic bodies to launch a systematic de-weeding and sewage interception program. This area has been marked for immediate intervention," the official said. Meanwhile, some residents have begun organising themselves to demand long-term solutions. "We are hoping to form a local committee to raise this issue with the Tamil Nadu Pollution Control Board as well," said a local resident, who did not want to be quoted.

A massive tree was felled, a lamp post and a police out post removed on the road connecting Poonamallee High Road from the Maduravoyal bridge. This stood as an obstacle to the free flow of traffic and there were traffic jams particularly during peak hours. This has been the case for years together. Thanks to the initiative taken by Mr Jayakaran, Deputy Commissioner, the encroachments have now been removed.

MTC assures for improved bus connectivity between East and West

By Our Correspondent

THE Metropolitan Transport Corporation (MTC) has assured it will examine a request to improve bus connectivity between Mogappair East and West, following a social media appeal by a local resident. The move has renewed hope among residents of the Mogappair neighbourhood, many of whom have long struggled with limited public transport options between the two areas.

The appeal was made via a tweet to the official MTC handle, @MtcChennai. The resident pointed out that currently, only one bus route—70J—connects Mogappair East and West. The tweet suggested extending existing routes like 20A, 48A, and 62B via Eri Scheme Road or introducing new services that would help bridge the gap and improve access through the interior roads of Mogappair. Responding to the tweet, MTC replied: "Hi, thanks for reaching out to us. Your suggestion is noted, and we will check on this."

Though brief, the response has sparked cautious optimism in the neighbourhood, where residents say the need for better local connectivity has been a long-standing issue. "There are hundreds of people who commute between Mogappair East and West every day—for work, school, and medical needs," said R. Babu Rajan, a resident of Mogappair East. "It may be a short distance, but without proper bus service, it becomes a big hassle."

A resident said reviving old routes like 20A, which once served the area, and extending other lines through the Eri Scheme Road could significantly ease the travel burden for locals. He also noted that such a move could boost ridership and reduce the area's dependence on private vehicles and shared autos. "The issue isn't just about inconvenience—it's about accessibility," said Ponvizhi Natarajan, a student who frequently travels across the neighbourhood. "This part of the city has grown so much, but the public transport hasn't kept pace."

Experts agree that better intra-neighbourhood connectivity is vital in growing urban areas like Mogappair. "Feeder routes and short-distance services are essential to strengthen the public transport network and support last-mile connectivity," said a former professor of urban transport.

With MTC now formally acknowledging the request, residents are hopeful that the next steps will follow soon, possibly including a survey or pilot initiative to assess demand. We are encouraged by MTC's response," Babu Rajan said. "Now we are looking forward to real action that will make life easier for so many of us," he added.

Pink autos not for men drivers, warn officials

THE state government had launched the 'pink auto' scheme in March with the sole mission of providing employment opportunities for women from economically weaker sections. However, several pink autos are now being driven by men. The Chennai traffic police, along with the department of Social Welfare and Women Empowerment, have been taking stern action against violators. A social welfare department official confirmed that police across the state have been getting hold of violators (men driving pink autos).

Under this scheme, eligible women beneficiaries were given a grant of Rs 1 lakh by the government towards the total cost of the CNG/hybrid auto rickshaws. The autos are functional in city railway stations and bus stands, painted pink. Further, these autos are also equipped with GPS and a women's helpline 181. These autos will be constantly under the city police surveillance.

Neeraj Finishes Second

By R Srinivasa Raghavan

NEERAJ Chopra, who broke the 90m barrier in the Doha Diamond League for the first time, finished second in the javelin event of the Janusz Kusocinski Memorial in Chorzow, Poland. Neeraj's best throw in the event was 84.14m. Even though it was not his best performance in recent times, it was enough to fetch him the runner-up spot. Julian Weber of Germany finished ahead of Neeraj for the second straight event to clinch the top spot with a throw of 86.12m. Former World champion Anderson Peters of Granada earned a podium finish with a throw of 83.24m.

Training with former World champion and Czech legend Jan Zelezny has worked well for Neeraj so far. Heaving the javelin above 90m in Doha happened under the guidance of Zelezny. His current performances augur well for his future tournaments this year.

Anahat, Abhay Shine

Anahat Singh and Abhay Singh bagged a double at the National Doubles Squash Championship here on Friday. Anahat and Joshna Chinappa claimed the women's doubles crown with a victory over Pooja Arthi and S Rathika 11-4, 11-9. Partnering Abhay, Anahat also won the mixed doubles title, defeating Velavan Senthilkumar and Joshna Chinappa 11-9, 5-11, 11-9. Teaming up with Velavan Senthilkumar, Abhay Singh also emerged champion in the men's doubles, overcoming Ravi Dikshit and Guhan Senthilkumar 11-5, 11-4.

Despite notice encroachments persist near TNEB Office

By N Rathi Chithra

A prominently displayed notice board at the Tamil Nadu Electricity Board (TNEB) office in Thirumangalam warns against encroachments and commercial activity near the premises. Issued by the Greater Chennai Corporation, the sign sternly prohibits setting up shops or stalls in the area. However, locals say the enforcement stops short—vendors continue to occupy most of the surrounding footpaths, sparing only the immediate spot in front of the gate.

The blue board reads: "This place is strictly not to be used for commercial activities. If violated, legal action will be taken by the Chennai Corporation." Yet, a few steps away from this very gate, the rule appears to be openly flouted.

"For some reason, only this tiny stretch in front of the gate it is being enforced," said Kumaravel, a regular bus commuter who boards the 7H from the Thirumangalam bus stop. "Just beyond this board, the entire footpath is lined with stalls—vegetable and fruit sellers, and even small eateries."

The inconsistency in enforcement has left pedestrians frustrated, especially those who rely on the footpath to access the bus stop safely. Commuters often find themselves stepping onto the road to navigate past the encroachments, putting them at risk amidst the heavy traffic on the main road.

"It's ironic that the board is put up by the authorities right here," said Preethal, a college student from Mogappair. "It's as if they are saying 'no shops here'—but right next to it, the vendors are doing business as usual. What's the point?" Local residents note that this has been a long-standing issue. Several attempts to clear the footpaths have resulted in only temporary relief. Vendors, many of whom are part of informal street economies, return soon after civic officials leave.

"We are not against vendors earning a living," said 'Railwaykar' Subramani, a retired railway employee who lives nearby. "But there must be designated zones. What we need is a proper hawkers policy with marked vending spots, not arbitrary evictions or selective enforcement," he said.

When contacted, a Chennai Corporation official from Zone VIII acknowledged the issue. "We have been conducting regular drives, but vendors return shortly after. We are working with the police and planning a coordinated removal and rehabilitation process under the city's street vending plan," the official said.
